

MUSEUMS WITH HOLDINGS OF TOBACCO-RELATED ARTIFACTS
Compiled by Ben Rapaport
(Winter, 2018-2019)

The following is a list of museums (and other places) around the globe having a few ... or many tobacco-related relics, artifacts, and antiques. I do not guarantee that (1) the museum is still open to the public or (2) items once cited as "tobacco" are still current holdings. Where specific information has been provided to me by the museum's curator or by visitors, I have noted the holdings. For German museums, I have used Billerbeck, Mit Rauchern lässt sich redder (1993) and Franz Wandinger, "Rauchzeichen in Deutschen Museen," Teil 1 (Knasterkopf, Heft 14, 2001 and Teil 2, Band 15, 2002). Both sources identify and describe German museums that have any segment of tobacco or tobacco-related artifacts. In some instances, the museum address is not complete, so if you have corrections (or additions), I would appreciate your input. I hope this list proves useful in your global travels or at-home research. Bear in mind that, occasionally, museums open and close without much public fanfare, and others relocate quite often, so this edition may not be wholly up-to-date. Check the Web or contact the museum before you plan a visit and to determine whether the artifacts you desire to see are on permanent display or in storage, and if you require a special appointment.

To those researchers interested wholly in clay tobacco pipes, note the following related links: (1) the online article, S. D. White, 'Chapter 3: Methodology' in The Dynamics of Regionalisation and Trade: Yorkshire Clay Tobacco Pipes c 1600-1800, in Peter Davey and David A. Higgins (eds.), The Archaeology of the Clay Tobacco Pipe, XVIII, British Archaeological Reports (British Series 374), 2004, that includes a list of British museums that may retain some clay pipes and relevant source documents; (2) "Culture Impressed. A Database of Marked European Clay Tobacco Pipes" (cova-inc.org) that contains some interesting data; (3) Gambier pipe database (gambierpipes.com); (4) claypipes.nl; (5) collections.museumoflondon.org.uk; and (6) The National Pipe Archive (pipearchive.co.uk), University of Liverpool, Department of Archaeology, Abercromby Square (reports, research notes, makers' marks, various, and clay tobacco pipe collections).

It's no surprise that Germany offers the most opportunities for museum research on all things tobacco and its accouterments!
